SIR JOHN IS DEAD.

THE VETERAN STATESMAN EXPIRED SATURDAY NIGHT.

Life Slowly Ebbed Away—Unconscious to the Last—Grief at the Capital—Rumors as to His Successor—Tupper, Thompson, Abbott and Langevin all Mentioned.

OTTAWA, June 8.—Sir John A. Macdonald died at 10:30 on Saturday night. During the day it was apparent that the end was rapidly nearing, and the watchers by the bedside and the physicians thought that it would come sooner than it did, but the marvellous vitality of the aged Premier struggled for a mastery until the last. At 10 o'clock the family was summoned to the death bed. Lady Macdonald, who has ever been a guardian angel to her husband, bore up bravely, but showed signs of great suffering and exhaustion. At 10:15, the lamp went out and the spirit of Sir John A. Macdonald had departed from the body.

Joseph Pope, the Premier's secretary, gave the announcement to the press and many who were waiting at the gate for the sad news. The fire-bell then rang seven and afterwards six, being his age, 76. Afterwards the cathedral bell rang for some time.

The remains will be embalmed. The funeral will take place on Tuesday, from the Senate chamber, where the body will lie in state. The body will be conveyed to the Kingston cemetery, where the Premier's first wife and mother are buried.

Everything political is in confusion. Ever since the Premier took ill, and since it has been known that he could not recover, speculation of the wildest description has been indulged in with regard to his successor. The first name mentioned was that of Sir Chas. Tupper, but it is surprising how few even of the Conservatives, outside of Nova Scotia, spoke favorably of him as a leader. His personality fails to excite enthusiasm now among the members, and he does not enjoy the confidence of the mass of the people. It is still the fact, however, that he has many supporters among the Conservative representatives from Ontario, and were it not for the general and growing conviction that he has seriously weakened himself for political leadership, and gravely impaired his usefulness and acceptability by his pursuit of the Grand Trunk Railway, he would be a very strong favorite with the Ontario Tory contingent for the succession of the premiership. But Sir Charles Tupper will be 70 years of age within a very few weeks. It is no secret that his health is not sound, and that the fatigue of the recent election campaign bore hardly upon his strength. One hears it argued, too, that he had not a seat in Parliament, and that this fact would embarrass Lord Stanley if it were decided to call on him to form a Cabinet. It would be at least 30 days before he could get a seat in the House. But any difficulty in this connection could be easily overcome. It is the common expectation that if he should be called by Lord Stanley he could be a candidate for Kingston, and, with the premiership, seek to hold Sir John Macdonald's constituency.

But there is another plan of meeting the crisis which has the support of very many of the Parliamentary Conservatives and which seems to be developing into a distinctly popular movement. Sir John Thompson is generally regarded as the ablest man in the Cabinet, and he has many supporters for the Premiership, but he has still more supporters, however, for the leadership of the House of Commons, with J. J. C. Abbott as Premier and leader of the Senate. Mr. Abbott was in high favor with Sir John Macdonald and a few years ago was freely mentioned for the successorship. For the past year or two his name has been little in the popular mouth, while that of Sir John Thompson has grown in popularity as the man has steadily grown in influence and in the confidence of the Conservative party. Neither Senator Abbott nor Sir John Thompson has the popular qualities which many persons regard as essential to successful party leadership, but they are both able men, and one can understand that the advocates of this plan of dual leadership may find many followers, and that their proposal must be taken into serious consideration. No one seems to think that the next Premier can be taken from Ontario. One hears now and then a mention of Mr. Meredith, but he is not much known outside of his own Province, and is under the displeasure of an important element in the Conservative party; and a few years ago Mr. McCarthy would have been a powerful, if not an invincible, candidate for the Conservative eadership, but in the crisis which now confronts the party one does not hear his name mentioned except in whispers and then in connection with that of Sir John Thompson. There are grave fears that the promotion of the Minister of Justice to the leadership would widen the breach between Mr. McCarthy and his party, not necessarily in consequence of any personal feeling on the part of Mr. McCarthy, but through difficulties on the questions of policy. That Mr. McCarthy could easily secure a place in the Cabinet if he so desired, is hardly in dispute. That he would not accept a place under Sir John Thompson is a pretty general opinion. His estrangement is a serious loss. He is the only man of first-rate ability in the Ontario Conservative contingent, and with the disappearance of Sir John Macdonald he becomes increasingly dangerous and increasingly powerful. In moulding and directing Conservative opinion in this Province in the changes to a degree which at this hour we cannot appreciate to the full, the political policy and the personal influence of the member for North Simcoe must not be left out of the calculation. There are other candidates for the Premiership. The Conservates from New Brunswick, with a few exceptions, have put Mr. Foster in the field, and they put forward his platform abilities and his rapid advancement to one of the chief places in the Cabinet as evidence in his capacity. Nova Scotia is divided between Sir John Thompson and Sir Charles Tupper as compared with Mr. Abbott and Sir John Thompson. The two chief Provinces do not offer native candidates. Sir Hector Langevin is Her Majesty's senior councillor, but he is under impeachment for high improprieties. Notwithstanding this, however, the best information is that Lord Stanley will first call him in for consultation and that he will decline the responsibility of forming a government. He and his friends would be gravely affronted if he were passed over by the Queen's representative.

There is again a movement which has the support of many of the Conservatives from Quebec. That is a combination between Sir John Thompson and Mr. Chapleau, with Thompson as Premier and Chapleau as Minister of Railways or Public Works. The opinion is held in some quarters that with Sir John Macdonald's disappearance Sir Hector Langevin will be thrown upon his own defence and forced to withdraw from the Cabinet. This will be Mr. Chapleau's opportunity, but that opportunity depends wholly upon Sir Hector Langevin's ejectment. It is argued that while Sir Hector now has the Public Works, the great spending department, and Sir Adolphe Caron as Minister of Militia controls a large expenditure, and to make Mr. Chapleau Minister of Railways would be to put all the spending departments into the hands of Ministers from Quebec. A formidable task confronts whoever may be charged with the reorganization of the Government. Factions are rising everywhere, and there is a resolute demand for new blood, particularly from Ontario. It was only by the personal favor of Sir John Macdonald that Mr. Carling held his place in the Cabinet and he must soon make way for some one of his younger and more ambitious rivals. There is a movement, too, to force Mr Kirkpatrick into the Cabinet and to crowd Mr. Bowell out to make room for Mr Clarke Wallace. The friends of Mr. Wallace are as active as any faction in the field, but there is a fear expressed by many that outside of the County of York and the Orange element in Toronto he has no personal following and would bring no strength to the Government. The crisis is also putting new life into the movement against Sir Adolph Caron. He is thoroughly unpopular with his Parliamentary associates and the militia of the country. The desire of the Quebec Conservatives is that he should be succeeded by Lieut.-Governor Angers who is declared to have good ability, and no objection would be made to Sir Adolphe's retirement to Spencerwood. Mr. Dewdney is also unpopular with many Conservatives and there is some talk of having him replaced by Mr. Daly of Selkirk, but this would scarcely be an improvement, and, as it is felt that a western man should hold the position of Minister of the interior, Mr. Dewdney may not be disturbed.

The constitutional situation which has arisen is freely discussed, and it is surprising how many different views are expressed by men who are supposed to be posted on such questions. Hon. David Mills, an experienced parliamentarian, a lawyer of great ability, a high authority upon constitutional matters says: "It is open for His Excellency to call in some privy councillor to advise him as to whom he should intrust the duty of forming an Administration. This practice has been followed in England when Cabinet crises have arisen. The Duke of Wellington and Lord Lansdowne were at different times consulted by Her Majesty as to whom she would select for the task of forming a Government. That rule would probably be followed here, and His Excellency might call in Sir John Thompson, Mr. Abbott or some other member of the Government to advise him upon the subject. If the person entrusted with the duty forms a Ministry out of the present Administration, then there would be no necessity for the Ministers seeking re-election upon accepting service under the new Premier. If, in the formation of the new Cabinet part of the present Ministry should be left out and new men taken in their places, the new members would necessarily require to go back for re-election, as their seats would become vacant upon their appointment to the Ministry. With us the Minister who has resigned or who has gone out of office may return to Cabinet office again without re-election if he does so within 30 days, unless within that period some other party has held the office. In that case he could not return to the place without re-election. At the time of what is known as the 'double shuffle' the law was different. I laid down that no person could return to the same office after he had resigned. The retiring Minister was obliged to seek some other office in the Government, and the members of the Ministry, in order to evade the law, took new offices. That difficulty in the statute was corrected, and the correction is embodied in the law as it now stands."

THE NEXT MINISTRY.

The Governor-General May Not Take Action Until After Funeral.

OTTAWA, June 8.—The Queen and Princess Louise have cabled this evening to have a floral wreath, in the shape of a Saint Andrew's cross, laid on the breast of the faithful statesman who spent his life in the service of his Queen and country.

The ex Cabinet Ministers met in the afternoon, when Sir John Thompson arrived from Montreal, whither he had gone to visit his little daughter, who is seriously ill. It is understood that the Governor-General has not yet summoned anybody to form a ministry. Sir Hector said that he thought it extremely unlikely that Lord Stanley would take action regarding the ministry until after Sir John's funeral.

New York Newspaper Comments.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Sunday morning papers comment as follows on the death of Sir John Macdonald: The Press, Republican, says: "His death will remove the greatest barrier existing to Canada's independence. Sir John has been the 'Grand Old Man' of the Dominion, and even those who have believed his policy inimical to Canada's future have admired his sturdy and honest combat for the retention of the Colonian Government. No other man in Canada could have held her so long in English bondage and no greater tribute could be paid to him than this admission of his power. As a strategist he always had some new plan to fall back on and he was simply inexhaustible in devices for achieving his purposes. In the very pinch of circumstances, many a time when the hope of his friends gave way and there seemed nothing but certain defeat ahead, he adopted some new and more vigorous policy and on the instant threw mere consistency to the wind, fought with redoubled energy and got his majority. He was never at his wits-end; though he seemed on more than one occasion to be close to it, he never learned how to surrender.

The Sun says: The death of Sir John Macdonald at this juncture must prove an irreparable loss to the Canadian Conservatives. The ground was cut beneath their feet at the late general election in the two great provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and their reduced and precarious majority had been secured in the Lower Provinces largely on false pretenses or promises that cannot be fulfilled. Even a wire puller so experienced and adroit as he who has departed might well have shrunk from the test of governing under such conditions as would have confronted him in the new Parliament at Ottawa. Whatever Sir John Macdonald could only have accomplished with extreme difficulty, none of his colleagues can be expected to perform. It is consequently a safe prediction that the present Dominion House of Commons will not live out the year, and that the advocates of unrestricted reciprocity will have shortly a second opportunity of appealing to the ballot box.

The Tribune says: "However hostile the point of view from which Sir John Macdonald's public services are regarded it cannot be denied that he possessed a genius for the conduct of the Government, that he was a creative statesman, that he accomplished policies and enacted measures of vast public utility and that the country to whose interests he devoted practically the whole of an unusually long life, has sustained by his death a greater loss than would be felt in any other community by the removal of any individual. Certainly he gave Canada a position in the councils of Europe and America which 5,000,000 of people so strangely connected could never have achieved except through a personal ruler of commanding strength and extraordinary adroitness. Sir John has no successor. The situation in Canada admits of no such personal government as he has carried out. The great problem that has so long been impending that he did not touch. He realised that it marked the limitation of his power to control the people. He postponed it. He moved it from time to time into the future and largely because the public attitude towards it was still undefined and doubtful. He was permitted to avoid an attempt at its solution. But now it must come on. It will not be settled by one voice. Leaders will play a small part in its settlement. Its postponement until now is to be taken, not so much as a proof that Sir John lacked the high genius which builds empires and writes enduring constitutions, as that the day is near when these are ceasing to be the acts of individuals and are coming to be the unchallenged right of the whole people."

HAYTI AND UNITED STATES.

A Proposition to Coerce Hayti by Stopping Diplomatic Relations.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Herald's Washington special says: If President Harrison shall act upon the suggestions that have been made to him, he will be able to rid himself of Minister Fred Douglas, and retaliate upon Hayti at the same time. There is no doubt that the administrator, as it finds expression in the state and naval departments, is greatly irritated at the dominant element in Hayti, for its refusal to lease the United States the Mole St. Nicholas for a coaling station. It is claimed, and the claim is susceptible of the fullest proof, that but for the good offices of the United States in raising the Haytian blockade during the Haytian insurrection in that republic two years ago, Hippolite would not now be filling the chair of chief executive. At that time Hippolite was profuse in promises of what he would do if his faction should secure the supremacy, and there is apparently no doubt that the cession of Mole St. Nicholas was one of them. Hippolite, as has been repeatedly explained in the Herald, now refuses to keep his promise. Certain members of the administration are now considering a plan of retaliation, which will, if adopted, not only sooth their ruffled feelings but may in the end force the Haytians to terms. The plan in brief is to close our legation in Port au Prince, order our minister and his secretary back to the United States, and sever our diplomatic relations with the black republic. It is contended that such a course would go far toward securing a speedy settlement of the matter. If another revolution be not actually pending in Hayti the conditions are at least ripe for it, and the surrendering of our relations with the Hippolite Government would materially hasten their development. This it is argued is the view of the case which would naturally present itself to Hippolite, and speedily bring him to his senses. More than this, as I have previously stated, it would enable the administration quietly to unload Minister Douglas, whose presence in Port au Prince as our diplomatic representative, has seriously hindered a successful settlement of the negotiations. Pending his enforced withdrawal President Harrison could find him another job, and when our relations with the Haytians were renewed again, a more suitable man could be appointed.

THE TALK OF LONDON.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL THE LEADING TOPIC.

Lords and Their Ladies Occupy Prominent Seats—The Latest Report of Why the Case Came on—Other Items From the Metropolis.

LONDON, June 8.—The resumption of the baccarat trial to-day showed no abatement of public interest. There was an absence of several of the more prominent attendants of last week, notably Lady Lennox and Lady Neville, but in their seats was seen the Countess of Latsom. The multitude of people who struggled outside to catch a glimpse of aristocracy evidently included a large proportion of the striking bus drivers, and some were disposed to be boisterous. Sir William Cummings looked brighter than on Friday. The rest had evidently done him good. Public opinion votes him to be the best looking man in the crowd. He bears a remarkable resemblance to the famous lion slayer, his near relative, and is said to have displayed similar nerve in action. The story now goes that the Prince of Wales was jealous of the friendship of Lady Brooke for Gordon-Cummings and told the baccarat story to break it up. The club men are not sure that he succeeded, and it is intimated that since the beginning of the trial Cummings and Lady Brooke have been seen to converse together on terms of evident friendship. Lady Brooke, perhaps on account of the connection of her name with various rumors, has of late been quite austere in her company. She had the aged Duke of Cambridge for a guest the other day and seemed to take particular interest in entertaining the old gentleman, while a dozen younger titled swells hung around in disgust at her indifference to them.

A JEW OWNS IT.

A Berlin dispatch says that the French exhibition at Moscow has been chiefly owned for some time past by a German Jew, named Grunweld, who bought up the tickets for eight hundred thousand francs. The circumstance creates some amusement in Berlin, owing to the well-known antipathy of the Czar to Jews, and of the French to the Germans. The Russian government is not giving the exhibition the encouragement that was anticipated on account of the alleged Jewish interest in the enterprise.

A MUSICAL SOCIALIST.

A musician, named Carl Reider, has been arrested at Munich for playing tunes on the street, which the police claimed were calculated to excite sedition. Reider has been arrested before for playing the Marseillaise in public. He is a strong Socialist, as well as a talented musician, and never hesitates to propagate republican ideas through the medium of music on the streets. Large crowds follow the musician to his stirring notes.

WOMEN DOCTORS.

The Austrian Government has not decided, as was reported, to admit women to the hospitals, only one woman has been admitted and she is only on trial. The Turks, who are very numerous in the occupied provinces of Bosnia, have objected to the presence of a woman doctor at the hospital at Seravego. For this reason, as the Austrian government is careful not to hurt the feelings of the Mussulmen, the woman doctor will doubtless be removed. One patient, when approached by the female physician, became very angry and told her to go back to the harem and not try to act the part of a man.

VERY CLOSE CALL.

From Australia comes the information that a man named Johnson, who murdered his wife and four children at Ballarat, was reprieved in the jail yard 10 minutes before the time of the execution. The cause of the reprieve was that two doctors had visited the man in his cell the night before and decided it their opinion he was insane.

CANNOT MAKE CONVERTS.

A dispatch from Stockholm says the Swedish Rikedag has passed a law prohibiting Roman Catholics from seeking to make converts to their faith. The exercise of the faith is freely permitted. The law is prompted by the growing number of Roman Catholics in Sweden, most of them being foreigners.

THE REFUGEES.

Large numbers of the refugee Jews from Russian persecution are taking refuge in Asiatic Turkey, where they are considerately treated.

The Prince Scored.

LONDON, June 8.—The baccarat case was opened to-day by Sir Charles Russell resuming his speech for the defense, followed by Sir Edward Clarke for the plaintiff, who in his speech unmercifully scored the Prince of Wales. Among other things he said it would be impossible for the authorities to strike the name of William Gordon Cummings from the army list and allow the name of the Prince to remain. This bold statement seemed to completely take away the breath of the audience, and caused by far the greatest sensation of the entire trial. A hushed murmur of astonishment, not unmixed with dismay and some irritation, swept over the court room. One must thoroughly understand the almost religious worship of royalty which prevails throughout Great Britain to clearly understand the full meaning of the crushing significance of the Solicitor General's words, aimed directly at the heir apparent. Amid this storm the Prince of Wales sat on the bench to the left of the Lord Chief Justice, not a muscle of his face apparently twitching, leaning his head upon his arm and endeavoring to appear totally unconscious.

TABERNACLE PULPIT.

REV DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

"I Will Say to the North, Give Up, and to the South, Keep Not Back"—Isaiah xliii, 6, the Text—A Notable Discourse.

BROOKLYN, May 31.—Yesterday having been observed as Decoration Day, Dr. Talmage this morning preached an appropriate sermon. It was a novel and unprecedented service, as in different parts of the audience were many of those who had belonged to both Federal and Confederate armies, the subject having been previously announced, namely, "Two Garlands for Northern and Southern Graves." Over the pulpit were two wreaths of beautiful flowers, and they were linked together, so that they were an object lesson for the subject presented. Text: Isaiah xliii, 6—"I will say to the north, Give up, and to the south, Keep not back."

Just what my text meant by the north and south I cannot say, but in the United States the two words are so point blank in their meaning that no one can doubt. They mean more than east and west, for although between those last two there have been rivalries and disturbing ambitions and infelicities and silver bills and World's fair controversies, there have been between them no batteries unlimbered, no intrenchments dug, no long lines of sepulchral mounds thrown up. It has never been Massachusetts Fourteenth regiment against Wisconsin zouaves, it has never been Virginia artillery against Mississippi rifles.

East and west are distinct words, and sometimes may mean diversity of interest, but there is no blood on them. They can be pronounced without any intonation of wailing and death groan. But the north and the south are words that have been surcharged with tragedies. They are words which suggest that for forty years the clouds had been gathering for a four years' tempest, which thirty years ago burst in a fury that shook this planet as it has never been shaken since it swung out at the first world building. I thank God that the words have lost some of the intensity which they possessed three decades ago, that a vast multitude of northern people have moved south, and a vast multitude of southern people have moved north, and there have been intermarriages by the ten thousand, and northern colonels have married the daughters of southern captains, and Texas rangers have united for life with the daughters of New York abolitionists, and their children are half northern and half southern and altogether patriotic.

But north and south are words that need to be brought into still closer harmonization. I thought that now, when we are half way between presidential elections, and sectional animosities are at the lowest ebb, and now just after a presidential journey, when our chief magistrate, who was chiefly elected by the north, has been cordially received at the south, and now just after two Memorial Days, one of them a month ago, strewing flowers on southern graves, and the other yesterday, strewing flowers on northern graves, it might be appropriate and useful for me to preach a sermon which would twist two garlands, one for the northern dead and the other for the southern dead, and have the two interlocked in a chain of flowers that shall bind forever the two sections into one, and who knows but that this may be the day when the prophecy of the text made in regard to the ancients may be fulfilled in regard to this country, and the north give up its prejudices and the south keep not back its confidence? "I will say to the north, Give up, and to the south, Keep not back."

GARLANDS ON LIVING BROWS.

But before I put these garlands on the graves I mean to put them this morning a little while on the brows of the living men and women of the north and south who lost husbands and sons and brothers during the civil strife. There is nothing more soothing to a wound than a cool bandage, and these two garlands are cool from the night dew. What a morning that was on the banks of the Hudson and the Savannah when the son was to start for the war! What fatherly and motherly counsel! What tears! What heartbreaks! What charges to write home often! What little keepsakes put away in the knapsack, or the bundle that was to be exchanged for the knapsack! The crowd around the depot or the steamboat landing shouted, but father and mother and sister cried.

And how lonely the house seemed after they went home, and what an awfully vacant chair there was at the Christmas and Thanksgiving table! And after the battle, what waiting for news! What suspense till the long lists of the killed and wounded were made out! All along the Penobscot, and the Connecticut, and the St. Lawrence, and the Ohio, and the Oregon, and the James, and the Albemarle, and the Alabama, and the Mississippi, and the Sacramento there were lamentation and mourning and great woe. Rachel weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted because they were not. The world has forgotten it, but father and mother have not forgotten it. They may be now in the eighties or the nineties, but it is a fresh wound, and will always remain a fresh wound.

Coming down the steep of years the hands that would have steadied those tottering steps have been twenty-eight years folded into the last sleep. The childishness, the widowhood, the orphanage, who has a measuring line long enough to tell the height of it, the depth of it, the infinity of it? What a mountain, what an Alps, what a Himalaya of piled up agony of bereavement in the simple statement that three hundred thousand men of the north were slain and five hundred thousand men of the south were slain, and hundreds of thousands long afterward, through the exhaustions there suffered, going down to death!

UNPROTECTED CHILDREN.

I detain from the top of the tomb these two garlands that I am twisting for a little while that I may with them soothe the brow of the living. Over the fallen the people said: "Poor fellow! What a pity that he should have been struck down!" We did not, however, often enough say: "Poor father! Poor mother! Poor wife! Poor child!" and so I say it now. Have you realized that by that wholesale massacre hundreds of thousands of young people at the north and the south have never had a chance? We who are fathers stand between our children and the world. We fight their battles, we plan for their welfare, we achieve their livelihood, we give them the advice of our superior years. Among the richest blessings of my life I thank God that my father lived to fight my battles until I was old enough to fight for myself.

Have you realized the fact that our civil war pitched out upon the farmfields of the north and the plantations of the south a multitude that no man can number, children without fatherly help and protection? Under all the advantages which we had of fatherly guidance, what a struggle life has been to the most of us! But what of the children, two and five and ten years of age, who stood at their mother's lap with great, round, wondering eyes, hearing her read of those who perished in the Battle of the Wilderness, their fathers gone down among the dead host? Come, young men and women, who by such disaster have had to make your own way in life, and I will put the garland on your young and unwrinkled brow. Yes; you have had your own Malvern Hill, and your own South Mountain, and your own Gettysburg all along these twenty years. Come! And, if I cannot spare a whole garland for your brow, I will twist in your locks at least two flowers, one crimson and one white, the crimson for the struggle of your life, which has almost amounted to carnage, and the white for the victory you have gained.

FOR LIVING SOLDIERS.

Before I put the two garlands I am twisting upon the northern and southern tombs, I detain the garlands a little while that I may put them upon the brow of the living soldiers and sailors of the north and south, who, though at variance for a long while, are now at peace and in hearty loyalty to the United States government, and ready, if need be, to march shoulder to shoulder against any foreign foe. The twenty-six winters that have passed since the war, I think, have sufficiently cooled the hatreds that once burned northward and southward to allow the remark that they who fought in that conflict were honest on both sides. The chaplains on both armies were honest in their prayers. The faces that went into battle, whether they marched toward the Gulf of Mexico or marched toward the north star, were honest faces.

It is too much to ask either side to believe that those who came out from their homes, forsaking father and mother and wife and child, many of them never to return, were not in earnest when they put their life into awful exigency. Witness the last scene at family prayers up among the Green mountains or down by the fields of cotton and sugar cane. Men do not sacrifice their all for fun. Men do not eat moldy bread or go without bread at all for fun. Men do not sleep unsheltered in equinoctial storms for fun. There were some, no doubt, on both sides who enlisted for soldiers' pay, or expecting opportunity for violence and pillage, or burning with revenge and thirst for human blood, but such cases were so rare many of you who were in the war four years never confronted such an instance of depravity.

As chaplain of a Pennsylvania regiment, and as a representative of the United States Christian commission, I was for a while at the front, and in those hospitals at Hagerstown and Williamsburg and up and down the Potomac, where all the churches and farmhouses were filled with wounded and dying Federals and Confederates, I forgot amid the horrors to ask on which side they fought, when with what little aid I could take them for their suffering bodies, and the mightier aid I could pray for their souls; I passed the days and months amid scenes that in my memory seem like a ghastly dream rather than a possible reality.

When a New Orleans boy, unable to answer my question as to where he was hurt, took out from the folds of the only garment that had not been torn off him in the battle a New Testament, marked with his own life blood, and I saw the leaf turned down at the passage, "My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you," it read just as though it had been a northern New Testament. And when I sat down and took from a South Carolinian dying in a barn at Boonesville his last message to his wife and mother and child, it sounded just like a message that a northern man dying far from home would send to his wife and mother and child.

And when I picked up from the battle field of Antietam the fragment of a letter which I have somewhere yet, for the name and the address were torn off, I saw it was the words of a wife to her husband telling him how the little child prayed for their father every night that he might not get hurt in the battle and might come home sound and come home well, but that if anything happened to them they might all meet again in the world where there are no partings, it read just as a northern wife would write to a husband away from home and in peril conveying the messages of little children. Oh, yes, they were honest on both sides. And those who lived to get home and are living yet were just as honest, and ought they not for the suffering they endured have a coronal of some kind?

COURAGE ON BOTH SIDES.

Yes, there was courage on both sides. They who were at the front know that. When the war opened the south called the northern men "mudsills," and the north called the southern men "braggarts" and "pompous nothings," but after a few battles nothing more was said about northern "mudsills" and southern "braggarts." It was an army of lions against an army of lions. It was a flock of eagles mid-sky with iron beak against another flock of eagles iron beaked. It was thunderbolt against thunderbolt. It was archangel of wrath against archangel of wrath. It was Hancock against Longstreet. It was Kilpatrick against Wade Hampton. It was Slocum against Hill. It was O. O. Howard against Hood. It was Sherman against Stonewall Jackson. It was Grant against Lee, and the men who were under them were just as gallant, and some of them are here, and I detain the two garlands that I have twisted for the departed, and in recognition of honesty and prowess put the coronals upon these living Federals and Confederates.

North and south, we will make a great fuss about them when they are dead. There will not be room on their tombstones to tell how much we appreciate them. We shall call out the military and explode three volleys over their graves, making all the cemetery ring under our command of "Fire!" We will have long obituaries in newspapers telling in what battles they fought, what sacrifices they endured, what flags they captured; in what prisons they suffered, but all that will come too late. One word in the living ear of praise for their honesty and courage will be worth to them more than a military funeral two miles long, or a pile of flowers half a mile high, and ten bands of music playing over the grave "Star Spangled Banner" or "'Way Down South in Dixie."

Now, while they are in their declining years, and their right knee refuses to work because of the rheumatism they got sleeping on the wet ground on the banks of the Chickamauga, or their digestive organs are off on furlough because of the six months of prison life in which their rations were big slices of nothing, and their ears have never been alert since the cannonade in which they heard so much they have been able to hear but little since—in these cases I call upon the people of north and south to substitute a little ante-mortem praise for the good deal of post-mortem eulogium. These two garlands that I twisted for northern and southern graves shall not be put upon the grass of the tomb until they have first encircled the foreheads of the living. I will let the front of the wreath come down over the scar of a scalp wound made by the sward of a cavalryman at Atlanta, and droop a little over the eye that lost its luster in the mine explosion at Petersburg. Hurra for the living! Calla lilies and camellias and amaranths and palm branches for the living!

THE DEAD KNOW.

But we must not detain the two garlands any longer from the pillows of those who for a quarter of a century have been prostrate in dreamless slumber, never oppressed by summer heats or chilled by winter's cold. Both garlands are fragrant. Both have in them the sunshine and the shower of this springtime. The colors of both were mixed by him who mixed the blue of the sky, and the gold of the sunset, and the green of the grass, and the whiteness of the snow crystal. And I do not care which you put over the northern grave and which over the southern grave. Does any one say, "What is the use? None of them will know it. Your Decoration Days both sides Mason and Dixon's line are a great waste of flowers." Ah! I see you have carried too far my idea that praise for the living is better than praise for the departed.

Who says that the dead do not know of the flowers? I think they do. The dead are not dead. The body sleeps, but the soul lives and is unhindered. No two cities on earth are in such rapid and constant communication as earth and heaven, and the two great Decoration Days of north and south are better known in realms celestial than terrestrial. With what interest we visit the place of our birth and of our boyhood or girlhood days! And have the departed no interest in this world where they were born and ransomed, and where they suffered and triumphed? My Bible does not positively say so, nor does my catechism teach it, but my common sense declares it. The departed do know, and the bannered procession that marched the earth yesterday to northern graves, and the bannered procession that marched a month ago to southern graves, were accompanied by two grander though invisible processions that walked the air—processions of the ascended, processions of the martyred, processions of the sainted—and they heard the anthems of the churches, and the salvo of the batteries, and they stooped down to breathe the incense of the flowers.

These august throngs gathered this morning in these pews and aisles and corridors and galleries are insignificant compared with the mightier throngs of heaven who mingle in this service which we render to God and our country while we twist the two garlands. Hail spirits multitudinous! Hail spirits blest! Hail martyred ones come down from the King's palaces! How glad are we that you have come back again! Take this kiss of welcome and these garlands of reminiscence, ye who languished in hospitals or went down under the thunders and the lightnings of Fredericksburg and Cold Harbor and Murfreesboro and Corinth and Yorktown and above the clouds on Lookout Mountain.

A UNIQUE SERVICE.

Among the thousands of gatherings at the north and at the south for Decoration Days I am conscious that this service is unique, and that it is the only one in which there has been twisted two garlands, one for the grave of the northern dead and the other for the grave of the southern dead. O Lord God of the American Union, is it not time that we bury forever our old grudges? My! My! Can we not be at peace on earth when this moment in heaven dwell, in perfect love, Ulysses S. Grant and Robert E. Lee, William T. Sherman and Stonewall Jackson, and tens of thousands of northern and southern men who, though they once looked askance at each other from the opposite banks of the Potomac and the Chickahominy and the James and the Tennessee, now are on the same side of the river, keeping jubilee with some of those old angels who near nineteen centuries ago came down one Christmas night to chant over Bethlehem, "Glory to God in the highest; on earth peace, good will to men!"

I have been waiting for some years for some one else to twist the two garlands that I today twist, but, no one doing it, in the love of God and my country I put now my hand to the work, and next spring about this time, if I am living and well, I will twist two more garlands for northern and southern graves, and every springtime until some man or woman whom I may have cheered a little in the struggle of this life shall come out and put a pansy or two on my own grave. But if the time should ever come when this land shall be given over to sectional rancor and demagogism, and north and south, or east and west shall forget what the good God built this nation for, and it shall halt on its high career of righteousness and liberty and peace, and become the agent of tyranny and wrong and oppression, then let some young man whom I have baptized in infancy at these altars go out to Greenwood and scoop up my dust and scatter it to the four winds of heaven, for I do not want to sleep, and I will not sleep in a land accursed with sectionalism or oppression.

And now I hand over the two garlands, both of which are wet with many tears—tears of widowhood and orphanage and childlessness, tears of suffering and tears of gratitude; and as the ceremony must be performed in symbol, there not being enough flowers to cover all the graves, take the one garland to the tomb of some northern soldier who may yesterday have been omitted in the distribution of the sacrament of flowers, and the other garland to the tomb of some southern soldier who may a month ago have been omitted in the distribution of the sacrament of the flowers, and put both the wreaths gently down over the hearts that have ceased to beat. God bless the two garlands! God save the United States of America!

Nature requires aid in correcting irregularities at this season, and for both men and women no other remedy equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a spring blood tonic. They supply all the constituents necessary to enrich the blood and build up the system. THE CRY OF MILLIONS
OH, MY BACK!
STOP IT NOW,
SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when last Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

WHITE ROCK, B. C.

This Townsite is situated on Semiahmoo Bay, and is the only deep water seaport between the International Bounday Line and Vancouver, B.C. It will probably be the Mainland starting-point of the Victoria, Saanich & New Westminster Railway. It is now the outlet for the finest agricultural district in British Columbia.

The C.P.R. has made a survey of a line from Vancouver direct to this point. The Royal City Planing Mills Company has built a substantial wharf here, and has established a lumber yard, which supplies the farmers of this district. A handsome Hotel has been erected and building is going on rapidly. Several influential and far-sighted corporations have acquired large tracts of land surrounding this Townsite.

GILMORE AND McCANDLESS CLOTHIERS & HATTERS

SUITS TO ORDER

CHEAPER THAN EVER.

Since the formation of a union amongst the tailors in Victoria prices for clothing have advanced to such an extent that people are sending East for their suits. And we don't blame them, either, if they can save from $10 to $20 a suit. We pay union prices simply because we have to; not that we consider it right.

We were paying our men the same wages before union prices were enforced that we paid them ten years ago, when we received from ten to twenty per cent. more for our suits.

We have from ten to fifteen thousand dollars invested in tailoring, and we propose to turn it over at least twice a year, regardless of profits. To do this we will make suits cheaper than we did before we paid high prices for making up. Good Tweed and Serge Suits, $25.

Irish Tweeds, $27, $28, $30 and $32. If any other tailor in town will prove that these goods are not genuine Irish Tweeds we will donate a Thousand Dollars to any charitable institution that he may name.

Black worsted suits $40. You will get the same goods for $48 or $50 elsewhere. We intend to make a specialty of tweed suits for $30; regular price is $35 to $40. We have the stock for our other business; it costs us nothing for the tailoring department; we have the stock; we have a first-class cutter, and we have capital enough to run it if we don't make a cent. So now is the time to get cheap suits to order.

We are going through the stock marking everything down. Don't take everything for granted. See our new schedule of prices.

HOME FOR OLD PEOPLE.

A movement, we understand, has been set on foot by Mayor GRANT to secure a home for the aged and infirm, who are unable to support themselves, and until a fund can be raised and a building can be erected, it has been proposed to utilize the old French Hospital for the purpose. This movement should not be permitted to lapse for want of interest. A house for the aged is quite as much in order as a hospital for the sick, or a reformatory for boys. Further, public charity should be as broad and as comprehensive as that coming from private sources. Our churches devote themselves entirely to charitable objects. The homes for Chinese women and fallen women are products of church benevolence. The city as a whole ought to do as much for the aged. Already quite a number of the aged and decripit are either being supported by the city or by private charity. The matter should be systemized, however, and a specific fund created for the unfortunates who are unable to support themselves in their declining years. Let a building be rented for their exclusive reception, and since the old French Hospital is in a suitable condition, and can be secured for the purpose, why not secure it for the benefit of the unfortunates in question.

MR. MURPHY ON THE STAND.

The committee on the TARTE charges have examined three witnesses, Messrs. LARKIN, CONNOLLY and MURPHY. Of the three, Mr. MURPHY was the most interesting. The readiness with which he answered questions was only equalled by his luminosity as revealing the peculiar methods of the Department of Public Works. Mr. MURPHY deposed that he became a member of the firm of LARKIN, CONNOLLY & Co. in 1880, and sold out his interest in 1889 or 1890. ROBERT MCGREEVY became a partner in 1882, and was to have an interest in all the contracts of the firm. Mr. LARKIN, to use the graphic language of Mr. MURPHY, "was to be layed out." As to the dredging of the Quebec dock, tenders were asked for twice. The firm of LARKIN & Co., however, only tendered once. "Why did you only tender once?" Mr. MURPHY was asked. That is, why did not the firm of LARKIN & Co. tender when bids were first invited? "Because," said Mr. MURPHY, "it was represented to me by Mr. THOMAS MCGREEVY that the Harbor Commissioners were going to re-advertise." "Were there any other reasons given why you should not put in a tender?" "Yes, several. One was that they were to re-advertise in order that MOORE and WRIGHT might think that LARKIN & Co. were not going to tender, and it might give them (LARKIN & Co.) an advantage on the next tender put in." This device, as the subsequent testimony shows, seems to have been successful, although more juggling was required. When the second tenders were advertised for, Messrs. LARKIN & Co. responded. They were the highest bidders. Some irregularity, however, was discovered in the other tenders, and it was further alleged that the competing firms were unable to furnish satisfactory security. That, though the unseen influences which were pulling for LARKIN & Co., were afraid the other tenderers would put up satisfactory security, a sort of snap judgment was taken. LARKIN & Co. were required to put up $10,000 additional security inside of 24 hours. That the Department had recourse to sharp practice here is obvious, for Mr. MURPHY, further interrogated as to what he knew of this 24 hours $10,000 transaction, admitted that he was told by Mr. MCGREEVY that the other tenderers would not be able to put up the amount within the time specified. Mr. MURPHY also deposed that ROBT. MCGREEVY was given a partnership in the firm that the "influence of the Hon. THOS. MCGREEVY might be secured." The terms were, LARKIN, 20 per cent.; MCGREEVY, 30 per cent.; CONNOLLY and MURPHY, 50 per cent. between them. Mr. MURPHY also admitted that the firm wanted KINIPPLE & MORRIS, engineers, removed. These engineers were, as Mr. MURPHY testified, "too severe upon the contractors, requiring them to keep up to the letter of the contract." "Was the removal of KINIPPLE & MORRIS only wanted in view of the Quebec graving dock, or in view of other works?" interrogated Mr. TARTE, "The cross wall tenders," replied Mr. MURPHY, "were to be tendered for, and we wanted, if possible, to have other engineers in control." In the matter of this "cross wall" there were three tenderers, GALLAGHER, BEAUCAGE and LARKIN & Co. GALLAGHER was LARKIN & Co's., foreman. Then came more juggling. GALLAGHER'S, of course, was a "straw" bid, and was the lowest. BEAUCAGE'S was next. LARKIN & Co's., the highest. BEAUCAGE changed his tender from 20 cents per lineal foot to $20. This change made his bid the highest, but he was given $25,000 for it and LARKIN & Co., got the contract. Asked if LARKIN & Co's, tender was large enough to allow a margin of $25,000, and leave a profit to the contractors?" Mr. MURPHY replied, "O Yes, more." If Mr. TARTE succeeds in adducing much more testimony of the kind elicited from Mr. MURPHY, he will not only establish his case but he will have proved a condition of things at Ottawa justifying GOLDWIN SMITH'S broadest charges of bribery and corruption.

AT THE CHURCHES.

The flags on the flag-staffs in the city were flying at half-mast yesterday out of respect for Sir John Macdonald, and the name of the dead statesman was on the lips of everybody. On account of the lateness of the hour at which the news reached the city very few of the ministers had time to prepare memorial services for yesterday. However, a great many of them mentioned the fact of the loss to the country and spoke of the sterling qualities of the dead statesman.

Rev. Dr. Campbell, at the First Presbyterian Church, just casually mentioned the fact but on account of it being the children's Sunday he did not preach a memorial sermon.

Rev. C. Watson, of the Pandora Avenue Methodist Church, Rev. White of the Gorge Road Methodist Church, and Rev. P. Jenns of St. John's Church announced the death.

At the St. Andrew's Cathedral, no mention of Sir John's death was made, owing to the absence of Bishop Lemmens from the city and the death being so proximate to the Sunday's services. However, Bishop Lemmens said this morning that on next Sunday he would refer to it during the services, although Sir John was not a member of the Catholic faith and for that reason alone regular memorial services could not be held.

At St. James Church the Rev. Mr. Scriven had a memorial hymn sung during the services, and in his sermon he directed the greater part of it to an eulogy of him speaking in a most feeling way to the many virtues and great gifts which he devoted to the good of his fellow man. He held his character up as a fitting example that the youth of the country could imitate and that his life and death would always be held by all the world as a life well and truly spent.

Rev. Mr. Smith, who is occupying the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church, during Rev. Macleod's absence, did not hear of the death of Sir John in time to mention it. The dead march, however, was played in the evening.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge referred to the sad event in a feeling manner at the morning services, at the Reformed Church. The dead march was played and the choir sang several appropriate hymns.

At St. Barnabas Church the funeral march was played before and after the services, by Mr. Johnston the organist.

Rev. M. L. Rugg called the attention of his congregation to the great loss they had suffered in the death of the Premier, and said a few words regarding Sir John and the work he did for Canada.

At Christ Church cathedral, His Lordship Bishop Hills will hold a memorial service in memory of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. The service will be held as near as possible at the hour of the funeral, which is now supposed to be on to-morrow, Tuesday. The exact hour of the funeral cortege leaving Ottawa for Kingston will be learned sometime this evening.

The Vernon news advocates the formation of an agricultural society, and the holding of an annual exhibition at Vernon. Now that the S. & O. Railway is nearly completed, the News is rightly of opinion that a district from which so much is expected agriculturally should take the best means possible to let its agricultural capabilities be known.

Difference in Weather.

While Victorians were enjoying splendid weather yesterday, and in fact many went to the park to enjoy the cool breeze, visitors to Sooke were pretty miserable. A party of fishermen who went out there say the weather was terrible. Rain came down in buckets full. But the worst of it all was a hail storm that lasted five minutes.

Cleanliness Next to Godliness.

The supreme thing in a house after a good kitchen and a good cook, is a good, well lighted bath-room, with a large, roomy bath. Porcelain baths are becoming very popular just now, and the solid handsome ones manufactured by Twyford in England, and imported solely by Braden & Stamford, Fort street, are the best article. Quite a number have found their way into the fine new homes now being built.

Lecture on Tights.

"Yes, it's true, says Jarbeau, that I trained those kids in 'Starlight' myself. The secret of keeping them in control on the stage is in feeding them there. Curious facts about kids, isn't it? Oh, I suppose I can do a little of everything. I've supported Modjeska as I know, and played Shakespeare I have some confidence in my imitative faculties. I can usually catch on to an actress' or singer's style and voice sufficiently to reproduce them, after seeing her two or three times." The interesting little lady mentioned above will entertain all who go to the Victoria theatre to-night.

Much Smoke out Little Fire.

From the appearance of Government street, near the corner of Yates, this morning, about half past ten o'clock, it looked as if a good-sized fire was in progress. The smoke was so dense that for a little while it was quite difficult to navigate. The men who are making the asphalt for the street-walk at this place were pouring a quantity of tar into the tank. There was a roaring fire in the furnace, and one of the doors was open, and some of the tar running over caught fire, and set the whole tank ablaze. For a few moments it looked as if there would be trouble, but the firemen soon arrived on the scene, and with the aid of a few boards and some sand, soon succeeded in smothering the blaze. No damage was done, and the work was soon going on again as though nothing had happened.

A Heavy Sale.

The Vancouver World says: The sale of the Moodyville Saw Mill Co.'s property to a foreign syndicate of wealthy capitalists has been completed, and a heavy deposit made as representing the bona fides of the parties who have made the purchase. The transfer takes place on the 1st of July when the new owners, in addition to assuming control of this very valuable property, will enlarge the cutting capacity of the mill to more than double the present output. The property will be cleared and laid out into city lots, sufficient, however, will be retained for the actual requirements of the company in connection with its manufacturing and shipping business. Other industries besides the saw mills are to be located there, of which fuller particulars will be made known hereafter. The consideration paid for the property is one millian dollars. It embraces the mills and some 400 acres surrounding the village, about 6,000 acres of timber and prairie land on Mud Bay; several hundred acres of land across the Inlet from this city and leases covering timber limits which will supply the mills with logs for the next 50 years, if double its present capacity. The property has a foreshore frontage on the Inlet of about four miles, affording unrivalled shipping advantages. Amongst the names of the purchasers are those of Rothschilds and other well-known London capitalists, who are determined to make their estate a valuable one by establishing industries, building streets, operating electric tramways, ferries and railways in that locality which is now certain to become a very important suburb of Vancouver, it being to this city what Brooklyn is to New York, Birkenhead to Liverpool, or Oakland to San Francisco.

WAS MURDER COMMITTED?

Queer Story Told by a Young Man From Rocky Point.

Either a horrible crime has been committed at Rocky Point, or a very crazy young man has arrived from there. Yesterday a young fellow about 21 years old, came to the Provincial police officer in a very excited state and said that he had escaped from some men at Rocky Point who wanted to kill him with knives and pistols.

He had heard some shooting, and drawing near a small house from where the shots issued saw several men shooting at one another, also slashing around with knives. Several men were all ready killed when he entered the house and upon their perceiving him turned on him. He continued his running all the way to Victoria, a distance of thirty-six miles to seek protection.

The man's talk was very incoherent but at the time it was thought that it was owing to his excitement, fear and exhaustion. Sergeant Langley dispatched Officer McNeil to Rocky Point to look the matter up.

Later, when the young man was questioned further he refused to talk even so much as to give his name or to tell where he was from. Officer McNeil will return this evening, when the matter will be cleared up, and in the mean time the young man will be kept under surveillance.

THE ZAMBESI ARRIVES.

The steamship Zambesi, 2500 tons, Capt. G. J. Edwards, the pioneer steamer of the new line between this part and the Orient, arrived off the outer wharf at 7:40 Saturday evening, and at 4 a.m. yesterday Sunday, landed at the outer wharf. She was drawing 20 feet of water, but came in easily at dead low tide. She made a rapid trip of 14 days, 19 hours and 35 minutes from Yokohama, which compares mostly favorably with the C.P.R. steamers Parthia, Abyssinia, etc.

The passenger list is: Saloon—Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds and child, and four servants, for Victoria; Mr. F. Morris, for Vancouver. Steerage—80 Chinese and 48 Japanese.

Cargo—2100 tons, consisting largely of tea, for Victoria and many Canadian and United States points.

Mails—24 bags for Victoria, Portland, San Francisco, Honolulu, New York, London, Dublin, Glasgow, Paris, &c.

The Zambesi has at present good accommodation for a limited number of passengers, but it will shortly be increased as occasion may require. The officers are: Chief officer, Mr. C. J. Mattock; 2nd officer, Mr. G. Jackson; 3rd officer, Mr. Moul; chief engineer, Mr. O. Daniel; purser, Mr. C. Wood, late of the s.s Parthia; 2nd engineer, Mr. H. A. Thomson; 3rd engineer, Mr. Denton; 4th engineer, Mr. Shimshichi; surgeons, Mr. O. Shimichi and Chanman-sang, Chinese.

The log abstract is as follows: Left Yokohama, 0:45 a.m., May 23rd, calms and fogs, steaming dead slow until clear of land; 24th, moderate breeze, fine weather; 25th, moderate gale, high sea, thick misty weather with occasional showers; 26th and 27th, same; 28th, 29th and 30th, moderate breeze, cloudy; 30th, crossed meridian, latitude 49° 13; 31st, fresh head gale and heavy sea, thick mist; 2nd to port, moderate breeze and overcast.

After discharging her Victoria freight which will take about two days, the Zambesi will go to Portland to discharge. She will then load and sail from here, this being her first port of call arriving and last leaving.

Messrs. F. C. Davidge & Co., who were appointed agents for the new line for Victoria, Vancouver, Westminster and Port Townsend, with headquarters here, deserve much credit for the way they have worked to obtain the new line. Mr. Davidge spent a great deal of time drumming up business, and if rustling will do any good the line will soon be a paying concern. The Vancouver, Port Townsend and Westminster freight will be discharged here and then forwarded.

GLASGOW, June 8.—Gallahist glass ware-house and the Ribbon manufactory of Willis Nelson were burned this morning; damage $250,000.

WHERE IS WM. WHYTE?

He Leaves His Office on Friday—Not Seen Since.

Mr. Wm. Whyte, who for four years has acted as cashier and accountant for Messrs. Dunsmuir, is missing. He left his office on Friday afternoon as usual, and has not been seen since. Neither his wife or family, who are left behind, have any idea of his whereabouts, with the exception of a supposition that he crossed the Sound. At the office of the company very little is known as yet as to the cause of his disappearance, as they have not yet had time to go over the books. It is expected, however, that his affairs are unsatisfactory, due to too much dealing in real estate. He had the complete confidence of his employers. He handled all the accounts of the E. & N. Railway, Comox and Wellington mines, steamboats, etc., belonging to Messers. Dunsmuir. It is feared that an investigation will show that he is considerably behind in his accounts.

NEW METHODIST CHURCHES.

Seven Thousand Dollars for the Gorge Road Church—Another Neat Edifice.

The congregation of the Gorge Road Methodist church are truly enterprising. It was only a few weeks ago that they decided that a larger church was necessary, and yesterday they took the necessary steps towards building it by subscribing $7000. The new church will be built adjacent to the present one, but as yet the plans have not been decided upon. No time is to be lost, however, as a meeting of the trustees has been called for to-morrow evening to complete arrangements.

The new Methodist church at North Saanich is having the finishing touches put upon it preparatory to the dedication services next Sunday. Rev. Coverdale Watson will preach in the morning and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The new church is a very neat and pretty one which will seat 150. Mr. Hooper was the architect, Mr. Matthews the contractor, and Mellors & Son the decorators.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

INCIDENTS IN THE CLOSING DAY OF THE TRIAL.

Playing for High Stakes—Extraordinary Scenes in Court—The Prince of Wales Deservedly Censured for Disgracing his Position—The End not Yet.

LONDON, June 8.—The revelations at the baccarat trial last week have stirred to the very depth the whole religious world. The news that the Prince of Wales is a habitual gambler, taking supplies of cards and counters wherever he goes, has blasted every chance of the nation granting him relief from his debts. The leading Baptist organ compared the Prince's taste for the racecourse and gambling with the noble example of his father, who, if living, would share in the intense grief of thousands of Englishmen.

All the exhibitions, theatres, musical entertainments, and such other attractions have been fully eclipsed by the interest which has been taken in the great baccarat show which was presented throughout the week at the queen's bench division of Her Majesty's high court of justice. The court was crowded daily with "smartest" London, those who were able to secure the necessary "season tickets," and the familiar criticisms of English newspapers to the effect that there is considerable lack of dignity in United States courts, have been so weakened that they should never again be renewed in sight of the fashionable display, luncheon exhibitions, and other scenes witnessed during the progress of the baccarat case. Lady Coleridge, wife of the lord chief justice, has been seen each day seated on the bench at the right hand of her husband, entertaining her numerous circle of friends, laughing and talking when she had not been writing notes, and sending them round the court with the same freedom as if she had been at a garden party. Sir Charles Russell was obliged more than once to suspend his examination of witnesses on account of the lack of decorum displayed in the court.

Mrs. Wilson, when asked by Sir Charles Russell, as to whether she had seen Sir Gordon Cumming cheat, replied with great emotion: "Yes, unfortunately; there is no doubt about it." Mrs. Wilson was most emphatic in her declaimers that there had been any agreement entered into by the Wilson family to watch the plaintiff's play on the second night (September 9) at baccarat. Mrs. Wilson said that when her son told her the plaintiff had been cheating she said: "Oh, you must not speak of it; we must not have a scandal in our house." During the second evening's play witness did not notice anything until she received a note from her son-in-law, Lycett Green, informing her of the facts discovered. Mrs. Wilson added that she recollected the plaintiff asking and having an extra £10 paid him for a £10 counter which he claimed had not been noticed by the Prince of Wales, and that the Prince in annoyance told the plaintiff to place his stakes where they could be seen. Referring to another occasion, Mrs. Wilson said that she saw the plaintiff push an extra £10 counter over the line. Mrs. Wilson said that she had an interview with the Prince of Wales on the subject on the following day, and that she expressed fears that her son, Arthur Stanley Wilson, would suffer from the after effects of what had occurred, owing to the fact that he was the first person to notice and call attention to the cheating; but, she said, the Prince told her that there was no need for her to fear anything of the kind.

Mrs. Wilson on cross-examination, said that she had not signed a paper pledging herself to secrecy. She admitted that the Prince of Wales had asked her not to say anything about the affair. Answering some other question, Mrs Wilson said that on the night of April 8, the Prince of Wales asked her if it was not possible to provide a proper baccarat table for the night following this. Mrs. Wilson explained that this was before the Prince knew anything of the alleged cheating upon the part of Cummings, consequently, for the second night's play, a fresh table was provided, but this was not done on account of Sir William Cummings, though it was hoped its use would prevent the occurrence of the events of the previous night.

Witness' husband, Arthur Wilson, she continued, objected to baccarat playing, because in his opinion the play might become high among "hot-headed boys." (Laughter.) On previous occasions, she continued, the sum of £500 had got into the bank, which amount her husband thought too large.

"Why did you not tell the Prince of Wales your husband objected to baccarat?" asked Clarke.

"Because," replied Mrs. Wilson, "we were such a staid, non gambling party that we did not think there could be much harm resulting from a few quiet games at baccarat."

Mrs. Wilson at another stage of her cross-examination admitted that £15 was the highest stake which she saw played on the table during the two evenings, and she did not think anybody staked even that amount until her husband did so during the second night's play.

Lord Coventry produced a notebook in which he had entered memoranda of the principal events which took place at Tranbycroft in September last. Sir Charles Russell read the entry referring to the baccarat scandal. It was seen that the account in the book agreed in all the main particulars with the evidence already presented upon behalf of the defendant. The memoranda closed with the words: "I was induced to recommend this course in order to avoid scandal and in order to keep the Prince of Wales out of it. I considered that I had done my duty to society so far as the case permitted, by insisting that the accused should never play cards again."

What it Costs

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

Matters of Interest Going Forward in the Sporting World, Here and Elsewhere.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

The games that were progressing as the TIMES went to press on Saturday were all interesting ones and drew large crowds. The lacrosse match, Primrose vs. Victoria second twelve, was easily won by the later with 5 goals to 2. Both sides did some good playing.

The cricket match between Victoria and Vancouver was a complete walk-over for the visitors, they winning with a score of 171 to 54. Lawrenson's 72 was a display of fine and careful batting. The game at Esquimalt between the Victoria second eleven and the Pheasant and dockyard team, was won by the former by 40 runs and an inning to spare.

The national game of the States was represented by the two nines of juniors, the Sunflowers and James Bays. The later won with a score of 32 to 17.

The foot race at the Driving Park for $100 a side was won by I. Saunders, of Oregon; time, 2:08. Watson's friends think he is the best man.

CYCLING.

At a meeting of the Island Wanderers held Saturday evening it was decided to send representatives to Vancouver and Whatcom on the 1st and 4th of July.

The Secretary was instructed to communicate with the Jockey Club regarding a tournament on the 1st of August, and the Caledonian Society in regard to a cinder track. C. H. Gibbons was elected secretary instead of H. J. Scott, resigned.

THE GUN.

The Union Gun Club held a shoot on Saturday last at the Victoria Driving Park and the following are the five best scores obtained:

H. N. Short	16
Frank Higgins	16
J. C. Maclure	15
A. R. Langley	15
Chas. Todd	13

Peoria blackbirds being used splendid averages were obtained.

A Carpenter's Luck.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, June 8.—Jas. Wood, lately a poor carpenter here, is on his way home from England nearly a quarter of a million dollars richer than when he left this city. The story of his sudden rise from poverty to wealth has many romantic features. Many years ago his grandfather, a young English naval officer, lived and married a young girl in Waterford, Ireland. The marriage was beneath his social standing, and his wife being of a spirited nature did not long bear the indignities forced upon her. She soon left his home and came to this country. Here she found employment to support herself and her child, a daughter, who afterwards became the mother of Jas. Wood, now the happy heir to a large portion of the Wood estate. The finding of the heir was through the accident of a friend seeing the advertisement of the executors of the estate.

A Courtesan's Death.

DENVER, Colo., June 8.—Ada Vernon, whose record is pretty well known in Boston and other eastern cities, killed herself to-day. She first came into prominence in the west as the companion of Maxwell, whose murder of Preller at St. Louis made a sensation on both sides of the Atlantic. After Maxwell was hanged, Ada Vernon drifted to Denver and has been living with a well known politician for more than a year. A quarrel with her lover was the cause of her suicide.

Strange Disappearance.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Lester L. Bristoll, superintendent of the Deleware, Lackawanna & Western Railway tunnel at Jersey City, has been missing from his home with his four children, Louis, William, Dexter, and Harry, aged 11, nine, seven and five years respectively, since last Saturday.
